The University has established this Protection of Minors Policy to protect children who participate in programs and activities associated with the University or that are involved with non-University programs or activities on the University's campus. Sewanee celebrates the presence of children in our campus community and is committed to ensuring the health, safety and well being of all children (those under the age of 18). This policy also provides guidance for University faculty, staff and students, as well as non-University organizations or individuals who are involved in programs with minors on campus.

This policy applies broadly to interactions of University students, faculty, staff and volunteers with minors in University-affiliated programs and activities (including those hired temporarily to work in such programs), and non-University organizations or individuals that operate programs or activities involving minors on the University's campus. University programs with activities for children fall within the scope of this policy and currently include, but are not limited to, athletic camps and academic programs (such as SSMF, Young Writers' Conference, and SEI). Also covered are individual lessons (including but not limited to academic tutoring, music, swimming, and art).

University faculty and others on campus who only interact in classes or other normal academic settings with Sewanee undergraduate or St. Andrew's Sewanee high school students under the age of 18 are not obligated to undergo the training or background checks required by this Policy. of abuse and neglect, and recognize the signs and symptoms of abuse and neglect. Resources about the impact of trauma on well-being also are included in this factsheet.

How Is Child Abuse and Neglect Defined in Federal Law?

Federal legislation lays the groundwork for State laws on child maltreatment by identifying a minimum set of acts or behaviors that define child abuse and neglect. The Federal Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA), (42 U.S.C.A. §5106g), as amended and reauthorized by the CAPTA Reauthorization Act of 2010, defines child abuse and neglect as, at minimum:

"Any recent act or failure to act on the part of a parent or caretaker which results in death, serious physical or emotional harm, sexual abuse or exploitation; or an act or failure to act which presents an imminent risk of serious harm."

Most Federal and State child protection laws primarily refer to cases of harm to a child caused by parents or other caregivers; they generally do not include harm caused by other people, such as acquaintances or strangers. Some State laws also include a child's witnessing of domestic violence as a form of abuse or neglect.

It includes information about child maltreatment reports, victims, fatalities, perpetrators, services, and additional research: http://www.acf.htfol serficeH@sead Dipes@seb.,

What Are the Major Types of Child Abuse and Neglect?

Within the minimum standards set by CAPTA, each State is responsible for providing its own definitions of child abuse and neglect. Most States recognize the four major types of maltreatment: physical abuse, neglect, sexual abuse, and emotional

What Is Child Abuse and Neglect? Recognizing the Signs and Symptoms

THE IMPACT OF CHILDHOOD TRAUMA ON WELL-BEING

Child abuse and neglect can have lifelong implications for victims, including on their well-being. While the physical wounds heal, there are several long-term consequences of experiencing the trauma of abuse or neglect. A child or youth's ability to cope and even thrive after trauma is called "resilience," and with help, many of these children can work through and overcome their past experiences.

Children who are maltreated often are at risk of experiencing cognitive delays and emotional difficulties, among other issues. Childhood trauma also negatively affects nervous system and immune system development, putting children who have been maltreated at a higher risk for health problems as adults. For more information on the lasting effects of child abuse and neglect, read Child Welfare Information Gateway's factsheet Long-Term Consequences of Child Abuse and Neglect: https://www.childwelfare.gov/pubs/factsheets/long_term_consequences
